The Science of Parchment SYMPOSIUM

"The Science of Parchment" brings together scholars in the humanities and the sciences for collaborative work applying new scientific techniques to the study of medieval books.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, MEACHAM AUDITORIUM

10:15-10:30 am: Opening remarks
Glen Krutz, Provost's Office, Vice President for Academic Initiatives
Joyce Coleman, Director, Center for Medieval & Renaissance Studies

10:30-11:45 am: Bill Endres, OU English Dept., "Digitized Vellum: Discoveries in 2D and 3D"

11:45 am - 1:30 pm: Lunch break

1:30-2:45 pm: Christina Warinner, OU Anthropology Dept., "The Genetics of Grime and Dust"

2:45-3:00 pm: Refreshments, Meacham lobby

3:00-4:15 pm: Special guests Bruce Holsinger, Univ. of Virginia English Dept., and Matthew Collins, Univ. of York Archaeology Dept., "Animals in the Archives"

4:30-5:30 pm: Reception: Bizzell Library 5th floor, Special Collections lobby
Viewing of "Science of Parchment" exhibit, Special Collections Reading Room
5:00 pm: Tour of Digitization Lab, leaving from Special Collections lobby

You are also invited to "Archaeology of the Invisible: A Discussion and Guided Tour of OU's Laboratories of Molecular Anthropology and Microbiome Research (LMAMR)," with Matthew Collins and Christina Warinner: March 24, 12-1 pm, rm 3065, 4 Partners Place (301 David L. Boren Blvd), with lab tour at Stephenson Research & Technology Center (101 David L. Boren Blvd.).

Supported by generous funding from the Provost's Office, OU Libraries, the Humanities Forum, and the History of Science Department.
For more information, go to http://cas.ou.edu/sop.
.For accommodations on the basis of disability, call (405) 325-0595 or email joyce.coleman@ou.edu.

The UNIVERSITY of OKLAHOMA
Center for Medieval & Renaissance Studies